

WILLIAM J. NEALON III
ATTORNEY AT LAW

Business & Corporate Law Consultations

Many of our clients own or aspire to own their own businesses. We can assist you in achieving that objective and work with you in maintaining and growing that business. If this is a new business venture, you will certainly want to have in mind the name you have chosen for that business. Not every name you have in mind may be available to you. We will certainly assist you in making that first choice a reality, but one must remember that it may have been another person's first choice at an earlier time. It is best to have more than one name in mind when you come for your consultation.

Business entities come in many forms, from sole proprietorships to traditional corporate forms. During your consultation the attorney will likely discuss the various forms of business organization with you in order to help you identify that which is most suitable for your business needs. We will assist you with the preparation and filing of the appropriate documents to establish your new business entity and obtain the necessary tax identification documentation to launch your new business. We can also assist our existing businesses with their regular corporate responsibilities such as annual and special meetings of shareholders and directors, resolutions and other corporate governance issues. We can also assist your business in addressing its ongoing financing concerns.

The standard consultation fee of $95.00 is payable at the time of this consultation.
